Intel Hub – Once again, a story that we broke has been confirmed. The Intel Hub has broke some of the most valuable Intel out there to date. We broke this information almost a full week ago. It has now been confirmed through multiple sources. The Intel Hub does not post anything that isn't well researched and these revelations have proved that once again. We have contacts embedded within many factions of the government and military. The*

Intel we have now suggests this situation will get far more sinister over the coming weeks. Please check out our shows and website at www.TheIntelHub.com. Please submit any tips to tips@theintelhub.com

Recent numerous reports have been circulated in various web sites and blogs about two seemingly major unusual events taking place in the U.S.

The First event involved extremely large and unusual numbers of National Guard Units in various states being called up for drills or exercises potentially for upcoming deployments. Many have speculated that these are unusual call ups because of the sheer numbers being engaged and the so-called secrecy behind them.

Many people have commented that they are simply being activated in preparation for deployments to Iraq this summer, but one 'CONFIRMED' report involved the Minnesota 1st Brigade Combat Team and marks the largest deployment of Minnesota military forces since World War II. This alone is highly suspicious.

The More disturbing INTEL that has hit the wire in the past couple of days is the report of large numbers of foreign troops arriving at a large naval base in San Diego, California. This report came at dusk on Wednesday May 19, 2010.

U.S. Navy vessels were spotted unloading extremely large numbers of UN and Russian troops and Equipment. They disembarked the vessels as it was still light out in plain sight. Mostly Russian troops.

Up until recently this was not confirmed, but merely rumor of a report from an undisclosed military source.

AS OF TONIGHT MAY 24, 2010.....We here at SENTINEL COMMAND have been able to actually CONFIRM this report to be true, by means of an On-The-Ground

This is extremely important INTEL because there have been reports that U.S. Secretary Napolitano had previously requested 3 to 4 brigades of troops from the Russian government to specifically assist in the quelling of domestic civil unrest by U.S. Citizens. This was done by the Obama Administration

The arrival of these troops obviously confirms this earlier rumor, otherwise they would not be here at this particular time. Although there doesn't appear to be any 'immediate' threatthis highly unusual event does cause extreme alarm and should have us all on our toes and looking for signs that something is going to happen and happen soon.

I need to urge each and everyone of you to stay alert and sharp and have your gear ready.....and above all, we need you to be our eyes and ears more than ever at this time. If any of you can obtain further INTEL on this report or any other activity occurring in your immediate vicinity, then PLEASE Report this back to me IMMEDIATELY. Please make sure the INTEL is Solid and Confirmed and not some rumors heard through unreliable third parties or websites.

A Link, as usual, has been set up for you to report any INTEL you can gather, at our DEFCOM page, as well as the news of this report and developments as they occur. READ

The Moscow Report: Napolitano's Request for Brigades of Russian Troops

Blue Battle Flag

Robert Jones – This is the report on the briefing given to the political and military leaders of the Russian government January 28, 2010 by a retired flag officer of the US Army in reference to Lt. Gen. Steven Blum Deputy commander NORTHCOM's request for 3 – 4 Brigades of Russian troops pursuant to an agreement between the US and Russia I referred to on the thread Striking Matches.

I had this all written and ready to post at 3:00pm local time 7:00am EST when my laptop CRASHED and I lost everything Grrrrrr. Please excuse me for not rewriting this as quickly as I would have liked to I was more than a little frustrated.

My ride and escort arrived promptly at 9:00am, after passing through several layers of security and descending 4 stories under the Kremlin to a rather nondescript conference room which looked like it could seat about 30. With a little help from their IT people I was able to connect my laptop to their projector and test the sound system and placed the briefing packets I had brought with me in front of where people would be seated (I was not sure how many people would attend so I made up 30 packets). At 9:40am people started to filter in and the doors were closed at 10:00am, I found it interesting that even here in the depths of the Kremlin armed guards were stationed at both doors.

The briefing proceeded for 45 minutes and with a few exceptions you could have heard a pin drop for the entire presentation, I was a little concerned that is until I finished and asked if there were any questions. For the next 20 minutes the questions came fast and hard until Minister Lavrov asked "Knowing our capabilities as you do and how the American's would react what would you expect our losses to be if we were to agree to send security forces to America as part of a larger international force?" I paused for a moment and told him that Russia should expect 75% to 80% casualties and that Russian/American relations would be seriously compromised for at least 2 generations.

And that was the end of the briefing, as the people left the room several came up to me before leaving to thank me for coming and making an "interesting and thought provoking" presentation. My wife's cousin invited me to his office for some coffee and until I arrived I had no idea how far up the chain of command he was (he is a member of the Supreme High Command). We talked for about an hour concerning several aspects of the briefing when he handed me an unmarked file, I sat in total disbelief of what I saw. In my hands was a letter from Department of Homeland Security, Secretary Janet Napolitano officially requesting that the Russian Federation contribute 4 brigades of "Advanced Security Forces" as part of a larger multinational force to assist in quelling domestic violence within the United States of America. The letter was dated September 14, 2009 and signed by Secretary Napolitano.
