

MUST WE BE FORCED TO FINANCE SEDITION?

The United States Constitution is the supreme law of the United States. It contains a written order that the federal system has to guarantee and provide the people a republic as their form of government.

Article IV – Section 4 – U. S. Constitution

Under the guarantee of a republic, the people are the ultimate power.

9th & 10th Amendments – Bill of Rights

In order to be the ultimate power, the people must have a means, in addition to their individual bodily strength, or power in the voting booth, to maintain and defend the guarantee of a republic.

2nd Amendment – Bill of Rights

The means, necessary to maintain and defend the guarantee of a republic, was wisely written into the federal Constitution, and is found in the irrevocable first ten amendments, commonly known as the Bill of Rights. The Bill of Rights has its own history and characteristics, which render it not subject to the repeal, revoke, or rescind process. The Second Amendment of the Bill of Rights commands: “A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed”.

2nd Amendment – Bill of Rights

All treaties made must be in pursuance of the laws within the United States Constitution and the Bill of Rights. Treaties are valid only if they are “made in pursuance” of the laws within the 1787 Constitution and those within the 1791 Bill of Rights. A portentous treaty, such as the Small Arms Treaty, is not a valid treaty as it intends to disarm the people; to eliminate their right to arms; to dissolve their independence; to alter their authority and operational concepts; to place them under a socialist system; and deny them and their posterity the rights and blessings of liberty under a republic. Treaties do not supersede the United States Constitution or the Bill of Rights.

Article VI – Paragraph 2 – U. S. Constitution

Socialist countries are not republics. They operate under a different set of political and economic theories, those which are based upon collectivism, and government control of production and distribution: government ownership of wealth as in communism.

Webster's Collegiate Dictionary

Passing federal, state, county or treaty law in the attempt to reconstitute the United States into a socialistic country; to change its form of government by altering the concepts of a republic and replacing it with an unauthorized form of government, not of the people's choosing; to disarm the population; to deny the people the exercise of their sovereignty and authority; and to gradually work to promote a collapse of the Constitutional republic is subversive and un-American activity, punishable by law. It constitutes serious crime. It is prevalent. This is called sedition!

18 U.S.C.A. Sec. 2384 Black's Law Dictionary

Why must we be forced to finance sedition and be forced to pay salaries to the transgressors? It is the duty of all loyal government officials to resist this slow invasion and to protect the people against it.
